
More universities recognise Cambridge qualifications than ever

25 February 2010

In the last 12 months, we've added 260 new entries to our recognition database for qualifications such as Cambridge IGCSE, Cambridge O Level, Cambridge International A/AS Level and Cambridge Pre-U.

Plus we've add over 200 improved recognition statements and updates.

In the USA alone, we've added 65 new entries and over 100 updates. For example, up to a year's credit is now available for learners with well chosen Cambridge International A Level at Rice University in Houston, Texas, one of the world's top 100 universities. And there are many more.

In India, Cambridge qualifications are fast becoming a benchmark for international education. In the past year, 13 universities and 8 State Education Boards have joined the list of institutions recognising Cambridge IGCSE and/or Cambridge International A Level.

Cambridge qualifications will open doors for learners at universities all over the world. Take a look at the recognition area of our website to learn more.

Source: http://www.cie.org.uk/news/features/detail?feature_id=31474&dm_i=2UD,3PE5,GVK8P,BIMD,1